'Don't leave home without STREETWISE.' --The New York Times' STREETWISE is an absolute travel essential.' --Travel + Leisure Magazine'In a strange city, your sense of direction is only as good as the map in your hands. The best maps to carry are published by STREETWISE.' --Chicago Daily Herald

Fits in my wallet like a dream and folds out to show you the wonderful maze of the DC metro. It is laminated and really easy to use. Durable, portable, and overall, a really good buy. However - quick tip - I do use the Streetwise Washington, DC, Laminated City Center Street Map I bought a lot more. It has the same metro map integrated into it - so you do not need a separate one. So unless you are a lover of little pieces of very useful paper (maps etc) in places you always know you can access (wallet rather than handbag, cos you just might switch bags and forget it in the other one), then it may be a better buy to get the bigger map and save on this one. PS If you are a dude and want it to fit in your back pocket or wallet instead of walking around like a tourist with it stuck in the inside of your jacket - take this one - the other one will be too big.

For potential purchasers of this map who are also evaluating the Streetwise "laminated city center street map of Washington, DC", this map is exactly the same in size and content as one of the six double-sided panels in the other map, but foldable into one-third the size. One side of this map provides a map of the Metro subway in the Washington, DC area, and one side provides a map of the area south and east of George Washington University, south and west of Union Station (the train station with which you will want to connect via the Metro subway in the case you wish to travel via train outside of the Washington, DC area), and north of the Tidal Basin (although the Jefferson Memorial is off this map to the south). Generally speaking, if you are visiting Washington, DC for the first time to see the sites, the two maps provided here will be most of what you will need, although be aware that once you arrive at your destination you will likely be bombarded with maps from all sides. I purchased this map for my recent visit this past week because I wanted a pocket-sized map that I would be able to bring with me so as to not get lost on my daily runs, but unfortunately this map was useless in the Georgetown area slightly west of this map where I spent my morning runs, and after running the first couple mornings I found my way around rather easily. I used the other aforementioned map for the rest of my time in Washington, DC. Fits very well within the Amphipod running belt that I also recently purchased.

I needed a simple laminated map of DC's Metro (light rail) to navigate the city of Washington DC. DC is NOT an easy city to get around! You not only have to know street names but also if it is SE, NW, NE, or SW? It can be VERY confusing, This map CLEARLY shows what trains to take to which attractions. Whether you want to see the WWII memorial, the Vietnam Memorial or the Air-Space Museum at the Smithsonian this map will get you there. You won't need to be flipping through thick guide books or folding and unfolding detailed maps. A MUST for every visitor to our nation's capital!

This pocket metro map is not necessary if you buy the bigger DC Streetwise map. It has exactly the same info on it as the bigger one. But, I suppose since it folds down to pocket size, that is a feature the bigger one doesn't have. I'll let the kids have this foldable one-pager to see if they can help out with figuring out which public transportation path to take.

Great! Have planned our trip around "the mall" in DC based on this map and metro stops. update 4/7/15 Just returned from our trip. This was the best purchase I have ever made for travel. Just ordered one for NYC subway system and for the greater Atlanta area. I will look for this map for every city I travel to. Made navigating the subway system a breeze. We rode the subway from springfield to DC metro EVERY day during our 5 day stay. We did not get lost once. My 17 year old son and my 8 year old son were able to navigate for us by the end of our trip. I highly recommend this product.

Used this for a recent trip to Washington and it was helpful for getting around. We mainly used the subway system and our feet, but a map of the streets is necessary. This is a durable and legible map.

I don't personally need this for myself, but keep one in my pocket while shopping. It's inevitable that tourists will approach me asking which line goes where or where what store is where in the mall. When their English is not so easy to understand, it's simple enough to point them in a direction and give them this map... being that it only costs a buck or two. I have a bunch of Streetwise maps and have never had accuracy or quality issues with them. They are up to date and hold up well to every day wear and tear. The colors are always vivid and don't seem to fade, and they don't crease in such a way that makes it difficult to see. Awesome map!

I am a huge fan of Streetwise maps. They are easy to read and very durable. I never travel without one.
