"This is a great kit to start your children to learn those common basic daily living words in mandarin. This is an easy guide for adults to use too. I love the quality of the flash cards. They have a smooth finish and are easy to read. Besides the Chinese characters shown, it also shows the Han Yu Pin Ying, how to write the strokes and many more. I would recommend it if you are looking for a simple kit to start with." ET Speaks from Home blog"Chinese learning material with Pinyin, simplified Chinese, and English support. Chinese character, Chinese writing stroke orders, sample sentences with the featured Chinese words are included in each flash card. The flashcards are divided into seven categories: (1) Basic etiquette and daily routines (2) Family members (3) Identifying Objects (4) Body parts (5) Multiplication table (6) Tell me what you like or not like (7) Tell me what you like to do. This is an excellent Chinese teaching resource with great visual." Miss Panda Chinese

Okay so for $10 I am not expecting Rosetta Stone quality but this is less than basic. It teaches a handful of words and a few songs. It does not teach sentence structure, grammar, past/present/future tense, etc. The only positive is 1.) the pronunciation and 2.) it gives step by step directions to draw the characters for each word. Not at all impressed but guess it's a decent amount to invest to see if my kids actually stick with learning it.

Excellent product, wide coverage of teaching methods. Well designed, quality contents, excellent price.

Arrived quickly, packaged well, great beginner cards or refreshing for the basics.

It arrived on time. It didn't come with songs as described, little disappointed but not too big a deal. It says the word in mandarin the first few words different people, that's nice. After the first few though it says other words along with it. I understand that they are trying to show how to say it along with other words. It just makes it more confusing personally.

this is a great learning tool for a beginner. well made

Very pleased with this kit!

Very helpful.

Smaller than I expected. Not too bad.
