In This Love Together: Love, Failing Limbs And Cancer - A Memoir

Synopsis

The upheavals of modern times can render human relationships difficult under the best of circumstances, and sometimes it takes the ironies inherent in those upheavals to strengthen the most intimate of human ties. In his heartfelt memoir, Mustin lays bare the hopes and fears, the joys and tragedies, of romance and marriage in middle age. The story of this couple's life together, set against wife Becca's struggle with cancer, is a searing portrait of late middle age in modern times.

Customer Reviews

Bob--Finished your book this past weekend, but have not had time to write you. This has to be your best yet. What a wonderful and courageous woman your Becca must have been. I commend you for having the fortitude to relive all those traumatic times and put them down on paper to show the world just how devastating this terrible disease can be. My father had leukemia, but he passed away just six weeks after he was first diagnosed, so his suffering, thankfully, was short lived. Only wish we had met Becca, for she must have been a joy to be with. The best, Hal

A heartbreaking, yet heartwarming story of this couple's journey of love and commitment to each other. The courage they found as they faced her cancer diagnosis and the subsequent treatments and care needed, is expressed so eloquently throughout their book. As an added bonus, there is a wealth of information and resources available to others who find themselves in similar circumstances and don't know where to turn for help. This book is sure to be an inspiration to anyone facing cancer themselves or going through it with a loved one.
