As the mother of a 12 and 13 year old, I’m instantly intrigued by teen devotionals. Afterall, inspiring my children to dig into God’s Word is priority one. Therefore, it’s no shock that this book drew my attention. The crux of this devo is stated on the cover, guiding teens to know Jesus through His life, His ministry, and His character. The book itself is well-constructed and able to withstand the handling of the rambuxious teenage life. Content is chronological, progressing from Day 1, entitled Author of Creation (Genesis 1 Reading) to Day 365, To Reign Forever (Revelation 22 Reading). Oftentimes, multiple scriptures are referenced. Each day contains a focal passage, highlighted verse, Ask Yourself questions for reflections, and prompts designed for response. The questions are thought provoking and delve deeper than the superficial, as are the response opportunities. Sample Question: From Day 28: Think about the stories you’ve seen on the news or read about. How do you see evidence of the "groaning of creation" in our world today? Sample Response Opportunity: From Day 155: Meditate on the Scripture you read today. What is the true way to heaven? Are you focused on Jesus and living His way? Overall, this devo is on target for the teen population in many ways, although I do have a few concerns that would depend upon the individual and time constraints in general. Schedules these days are tight, especially for kids in this target audience. These daily devos are miniature bible studies, requiring a separate source for Scripture (the passages are not presented on the page) and a journal. Again, I think digging deep is ideal for our kiddos, but this gem of a book might be more appropriate for those who are already in the habit of blocking a minimum of 30-45 minutes out per day for study. Consistency is key, and I would hate for the consumer to purchase this book only to have the first two days completed and the rest to remain undone, wedged between forgotten books on a shelf. Personally, I plan to do this Bible study, and then pass it on to my son next year. He will be in high school then, and I feel it would be a better fit.

Knowing Jesus.. the desire of every Christian's heart. This 365 devotional has Jesus each day. It is numbered rather than dated, so you can begin the devotional at any time. Miss a day? Just jump back in where you left off, easy as that.. no guilt or catching up. Each devotion covers one page. You will need a Bible to read the devotional as it suggests a scripture reading at the begin of each reading. This is where you will camp for the devotional. Each day you will be reading several verses. Often there is a quote from one or two of the verses for reference and you can get an idea of where you might be reading for that day. After the reading there are sections titled; Answer the Following Questions, Ask Yourself, Consider these Questions. Some variation of a question section where the questions are asked about the reading done for that day. These aren't 'milk' questions either, but beginning to dig into the meat of the message. I love this about the devotion. It is applicable for both the new believer, and the seasoned believer. The book mentions it is the Essential Teen devotion. There is rarely a mention of anything specifically teen related though. This devotional can easily be used by everyone. I love that it doesn't look at typical teen problems and try to dissect them, instead the focus is on Jesus. The final section is the Respond. This is where you take a look internally and see if you are where you need to be on this particular passage. Some responses are to pray, to consider, to even make lists. This last section is great to make it applicable to your own life. The devotion is very focused on salvation through Jesus. It mentions having personal encounters with Jesus, and a saving faith. I found it to be very sound doctrinally, and again would really work for any age. I was planning to give it to my teen, but loved it so much I decided to keep it myself.
