Customer Reviews

A beautiful coffee-table volume... compositions dynamic in their visual authority... unusual perspectives that make once-familiar locations mysterious and engaging. -- Champaign-Urbana Octopus
Hamerman's eyes see things we don't... a delightful foreword by alum Roger Ebert on what the university means to him. -- Champaign News-Gazette
Patient creation is evident in the richness of the collection. ...striking, thought-provoking images taken from all angles in all seasons. -- The Daily Illini
Photographs that show the university in a way that only an artistic eye could see. -- Daily Herald

Don Hamerman is a freelance photographer who has been photographing the University of Illinois since 1985. He lives in Stamford, Connecticut.

Nice - not great.

This is an absolute must have for Univ. of Illinois alumni who appreciate good photography. In talking with other alumni who have seen and/or own this book, the images bring up memories from their time on campus. It also tweaks the curiosity, because Hamerman shows a penchant for finding new perspectives (close-ups, etc.) that can be overlooked in the rush of campus life. Compared to other photography of the UI campus I've seen, this is very original. And Ebert's introduction is a nice read -- it ties in wonderfully to the book. I highly recommend!

This is a beautiful book with many photographs which bring back special memories to those who have a connection with U of IL. It will be a special treasure for anyone who attended the university. Many different aspects of university life are covered by Don Hamerman's fabulous photographs. A great gift for alumni, current students or those who hold a special place for Urbana/Champaign and the University of Illinois in their memories.
